President Lewis W. Webb, Jr. and Anne Haste, President of Student Government, spoke to the Virginia General Assembly to request additional funds for the Norfolk College of William and Mary.

RICHMOND—A pretty Norfolk William and Mary College senior who plans to teach school appealed to the General Assembly Wednesday to meet the full needs of the college.

Anne Haste had to get on a stand to speak into the public address system, but her appeal came as the dramatic moment in hearings before the House Appropriations and Senate Finance committees.

"The college offers the only opportunity for many of us to get an education. Our facilities presently are overcrowded. The student body asked me to speak for them. . . . our request is not a selfish one," Miss Haste said.

She is a resident of South Norfolk and is president of the student body.

She backed up Lewis W. Webb Jr., president of the college that is to be made independent of William and Mary in Williamsburg under a bill already approved by the House of Delegates.
Students Brock Dashiell and Billy Kyle discuss employment opportunities with Mr. Bowden and Mr. Stephenson of Seaboard Citizens Bank.

Nadine Isaacs, Faculty Scholarship winner (c.) admires the trophies held by Mac Rawls, President of Kappa Sigma Kappa, and Jeneil Teifer, President of Delta Sigma Lambda, awarded to their respective groups for the highest scholastic average for the year.

Gay Olsson, Mr. Charles Sibley, and Mary Ford view the William and Mary art exhibit.

President Webb, the administration, and staff gather to wish a happy birthday to Mr. Arthur R. Akers, Head of the Maintenance Department.
