Program Notes

Overture to Don Giovanni

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart composed his 2 act opera Don Giovanni in 1787. It was an immediate success with audiences and remains one of the most popular operas of all time. Mozart called Don Giovanni an opera buffa (comic opera) although it was billed as a “drama giocoso” to indicate that it contained elements of both drama and comedy. The opera features a character named Don Giovanni, a licentious Spanish nobleman with a reputation for seducing and abusing women. The opera chronicles Don Giovanni’s exploits of attempted rape, murder, and deceit, his relations with the characters Donna Anna, Donna Elvira, and Zerlina, and his eventual downfall.

In the first scene of the opera, Don Giovanni kills Donna Anna’s father, Don Pedro, the Commendatore and in the final scene of the opera, a marble statue of the Commendatore comes to life to punish Don Giovanni, ushering him into hell.

As was typical for the time, Don Giovanni opens with an instrumental overture. Mozart famously composed the overture the night before the opera’s premiere.

Enigma Variations/Nimrod

A century after becoming Elgar’s breakout success, the “Enigma” Variations still pose riddles, though the most significant ones are “Is there really a riddle?” and “Does it matter?” The answers are, respectively, yes and no. The story begins with Elgar doodling on the piano. When his wife Alice asked what he was playing, he answered “Nothing – but something might be made of it.” It became a theme with two parts: the first in a melancholy G minor, full of falling thirds, and the second in G major, with rising motifs. He wrote variations by imagining how some of his musician friends might have written the theme, and then added variations characterizing or caricaturing non-musician acquaintances. He wrote to his friend and supporter August Jaeger of the Novello publishing house, “I like to imagine the ‘party’ writing the var: him (or her) self & have written what I think they wd. have written – if they were asses enough to compose.” The score has only initials or nicknames of the persons portrayed, but their identities were eventually disclosed: IX. Nimrod. The variation is a tribute to August Jaeger (“Jäger” is “hunter” in German, and Nimrod, the “mighty hunter” of Genesis 10, is synonymous with “hunter” to the bibliically versed). It recalls discussions they had about Beethoven’s slow movements. Elgar noted the melody’s resemblance to the “Pathétique” Sonata’s adagio.

Cardas

The flamboyant Csardas by Vittorio Monti , has been a favorite among the elite violin virtuosos, including Heifetz. However, the fastidious violinist may have found Monti’s evocation of Hungarian Gypsy tunes a bit too earthy, as he never recorded it. Monti enjoyed great success with the Hungarian stylings of the Czardas, which was originally composed for either violin or mandolin and piano. It has since been arranged for many types of ensembles, including orchestra. For many listeners it captures the essence of the old Hungarian dance with its use of fast and slow music. Monti was a Neapolitan violinist, mandolinist and composer best known for his operettas and other “light” music. He was born in Naples and educated at the Conservatorio di San Pietro where he studied violin and composition. In 1886 he moved to Paris to further his studies, and was with the Lamoureux Orchestra for many years. Although Monti became the conductor of the Paris-Opera music hall around 1900, he eventually abandoned conducting in favor of composition, and the teaching of violin and mandolin. Although the Csardas made him famous, he also produced publications on the art of Neapolitan mandolin playing, and several other compositions for violin and orchestra.
Greensleeves
Greensleeves is a traditional English folk song and tune dating from the 16th century. The famous Christmas song, “What Child Is This?”, combines the melody with lyrics hailing the newborn Christ, “whom angels greet with anthems sweet while shepherds watch are keeping”. Arranger Alfred Reed (1921-2005) was born in New York City. Acquainted with symphonic and operatic repertoire from an early age, he played trumpet professionally in the Catskills while still in high school. During WWII he was a member of the 529th Army Air Corps Band where he produced over 100 compositions and arrangements. He studied at Juilliard and became a staff composer and arranger with NBC, then ABC. He later conducted the Baylor Symphony Orchestra, worked as a music editor, and taught at the University of Miami for 27 years. He composed over 500 works for band, wind ensemble, orchestra, chorus and various chamber ensembles.

Sleigh Ride
Two of America’s most popular pieces of the holiday season were born in unseasonable weather. Irving Berlin wrote “White Christmas” while spending the holidays in warm Arizona, and Leroy Anderson was inspired to compose Sleigh Ride during the summer of 1946, as a diversion from the effects of a record-breaking heat wave. Uncharacteristically for Anderson, who usually composed quickly, he did not finish the piece until 1948. Though his memorable melodies were a staple of musical life in the 1940s and ’50s, Anderson never intended to be a professional composer. He majored in Scandinavian languages at Harvard University in the 1930s, earning money on the side as an arranger for the Harvard Band. The arrangements came to the attention of conductor Arthur Fiedler, and before long, Anderson’s original compositions—short, catchy tunes with piquant harmonies—were everywhere. The Syncopated Clock and Sleigh Ride are probably his two bestknown works. Anderson recorded Sleigh Ride with a studio orchestra in 1950 and the result went on to evergreen status. He meant the piece to evoke winter generically, rather than Christmas specifically, but the holiday association stuck, and according to ASCAP, the royalty organization, Sleigh Ride topped all other Christmas songs for popularity in 2010 and 2011.

Christmas Kaleidoscope
Franklin J. Stroble was born and grew up in South Williamsport, PA. He began lessons on the Trumpet as a 4th grader. As a sophomore in high school, Frank was asked to switch to French Horn and, within weeks, decided that’s what he wanted to do for the rest of his life. (A decision that was later vindicated by hearing the “Star Wars” soundtrack for the first time.) He earned a B.S. in Music Education from Mansfield University of Pennsylvania and settled in Voorhees, NJ in the mid-1980’s. Since then, Frank has been a fixture of the Delaware Valley classical music scene. He’s Principal Horn and one of the founding members of the Philharmonic of Southern New Jersey, and has served two terms as Assistant Conductor of the Wind Symphony of Southern New Jersey. As a performer, he’s accompanied such noted and diverse artists as Ella Fitzgerald, Paul Warfield, Barbara Nissman, Leon Bates, Richard Stoltzman, Lionel Hampton, Jr., Stanley Clarke, Storm Large and Joshua Roman. In 2015, Frank gave up his “day job” in the business world to devote his time and energies to composing, arranging, teaching and performing. During 2017 he completed four original works for wind ensemble, including Christmas Kaleidoscope... the work we present today.

Frank writes about Christmas Kaleidoscope, “I’ve always enjoyed Leroy Anderson’s “A Christmas Festival,” but I wanted to do something for the holiday season that’s written especially for wind ensemble (Anderson’s piece is a transcription of an earlier, orchestral work). Rather than a simple medley, I conceived Christmas Kaleidoscope in the form of a rondo, with “Over the River” (or a variation of it) as a continuing refrain, with other carols, songs or hymns serve as the alternative musical episodes. While working on the piece I realized it would be possible to interpolate “Over the River” in amongst the other carols, so the attentive listener will occasionally hear two songs at the same time. Further, I’ve arranged the work so that each section of the wind ensemble, including pitched and unpitched percussion, has a bravura moment or two. Most of the songs selected represent the festive aspects of the holiday season, but there is a quieter, central section that’s a little more spiritual in nature. I invite the listener to imagine a busload of slightly tipsy carolers (with a designated driver, of course!) having a singoff, with various factions each making the case for one of ten favorite holiday tunes.” Frank would like to dedicate Christmas Kaleidoscope to Dr. Wesley Broadnax and the Drexel University Wind Ensemble, with Gratitude for Support and Encouragement for the Novice (but not Young) Composer.

Polar Express
The Polar Express is a suite of four tunes from the 2004 Christmas-themed film starring Tom Hanks. The movie, which employed motion capture computer animation, is based on the popular children’s book of the same title by Chris Van Allsburg.

Nutcracker Fantasia
This is a descriptive work in 2 stages. The first stage is daydreaming about the Nutcracker Ballet after watching it – hearing melodies in different ways. During measures 122-128, you drift off to sleep. Measure 129, The Nutcracker Ballet takes over – it’s rude awakening. Measure 130 to the end, you are IN the Ballet in your dreams!
