still one of Fillmore’s most popular march. Ye Banks and Braes o’ Bonnie Doon is a slow, sustained Scottish folk tune. Grainger’s original setting of this was done in 1901 for “men’s chorus and whistlers,” and the present version for band was published in 1901.

Bandology March

Published in 1964, Bandology remains Osterling’s most popular march. The composer stays within the March format but uses rich, full dance band chords and interesting rhythms for contrast. A stop-time section for brass and percussion and a pleasingly lyrical trio help to make this light concert march an audience favorite.

Mannin Veen

The title of this work translates to “Dear Isle of Man.” It was on this British Island situated in the Irish Sea that Haydn Wood spent most of his childhood. Using four Manx folk songs from this heritage, Wood paints an enchanting tone poem. Mannin Veen is a remarkable work that demonstrates many of the nationalist characteristics of English composers of this period.

The first theme, The Good Old Way, is an old and typical air written mostly in the Dorian mode to produce a somber feeling. A portion of the tune in the major key is attributed to Primitive Methodism introduced into the Isle of Mann about the time of Wood’s birth in 1882. The second tune, introducing the lively section of the work, is based on the reel The Manx Fiddler. Chaloner, writing in the middle of the seventeenth century, remarked that the Manx people were “much addicted to the music of the violyne, so that there is scarce a family in the Island, but more or less can play upon it; but as they are ill composers, so they are bad players.” Sweet Water in the Common, the third tune, relates to the old practice of summoning a jury of twenty-four men, comprised of three men from each of the parishes in the district where the dispute took place, to decide questions connected with watercourses, boundaries, etc. The fourth and the last tune is a fine old hymn, The Harvest of the Sea, sung by the fishermen as a song of thanksgiving after their safe return from the fishing grounds.

His Honor

Some of Fillmore’s marches, overtures, and novelty pieces were composed especially for his own band of professional musicians, organized in 1927 in Cincinnati, Ohio. His Honor, composed in 1933 and published the following year, was one such favorite of both band members and audiences alike. The title refers to Mayor Russell Wilson, a man who impressed the composer with his sense of humor as well as his executive ability. With its unexpected melodic and rhythmic changes and its various performances possibilities, His Honor is still one of Fillmore’s most popular march.
strengthening content knowledge and improving parent-student-school-teacher relationships.

Over the course of a forty two year career, he has directed public school and collegiate bands, orchestras, and jazz ensembles. During this time he also served as music director and principal conductor of the Bay Area Symphony Orchestra—a professional ensemble that performed major orchestral works on Long Island and in New York City.

For many years, he served as District Director of Music and Art for Baldwin Public Schools, Baldwin, N.Y., and enjoyed an active conducting schedule of district and regional festival groups. After leaving Baldwin, he joined the faculty of Five Towns College in New York, where he conducted the concert band and jazz orchestra, and founded the wind ensemble program. As dean of graduate studies at FTC he supervised a five track Master of Music degree program, and created and implemented four Doctor of Musical Arts programs.

Throughout his career, Townsend has made many regional and international presentations at music education conferences. He has authored numerous articles that have been published in a range of top journals, and he has a book coming out this fall, Introduction to Effective Music Teaching: Artistry and Attitude (Rowman & Littlefield, publishers). Early reviews have called the book “a treasure trove for music educators, motivational, masterfully written, remarkable and influential, comprehensive and important, a welcome contribution to the profession.”

Dwight Leonard is a 1976 graduate of Old Dominion University with a degree in Music Education. Before becoming Executive Director of Fiesta-Val in Richmond, Virginia, he was a highly successful band director in Virginia Beach, teaching at Kempsville Jr. High School and Tallwood High School. His Kempsville Jr. High School Band was only the second band from this region to be invited to perform at the Midwest Band and Orchestra Clinic in Chicago.

The piece he is conducting tonight, "Threnody for Challenger" was written for Mr. Leonard and the Kempsville Jr. High Band for their performance at the Midwest Clinic.

Student Soloist

Program Notes
Morning Star was commissioned by the Grand Ledge, Michigan High School Wind Symphony, Michael Kaufman, conductor. It was premiered by them in May of 1997. I was asked to write a celebratory piece for the opening of the wonderful new concert hall at Grand Ledge High.

Morning Star was a surprise to me. In planning the piece, I came up with a great many ideas—enough for three or four pieces. When it came time to compose, I suddenly discarded all of that material and took up a little tune that came to mind. The result is a happy piece, a concept which does not usually attach itself to my music. The piece is a Rondo shape with the “A” portions being sets of variation on the brief theme. There are 32 variations in all. The orchestration, while offering enough to brass and percussion, strongly emphasizes wind color and open sounds.

Morning Star is about beginning: the dawning of a new day, the opening of a new hall, the beginning of adult life for the young people who premiered the piece, and for those who are playing it now.

Threnody for Challenger
Composed in the fifth anniversary year of the challenger tragedy, “Threnody for Challenger” is not only a remembrance of a great national loss, but also a salute to the spirit of the seven fallen astronauts of Challenger.

A distant introduction gives way to the primary theme sounded over an insistent ostinato. A misty, elegiac passage mourns the fallen astronauts collectively and individually; this section eventually overtaken by a restatement of the primary theme and a coda.

The musical materials for “Threnody for Challenger” are derived from symbolic, literal, and numerological sources. The opening section, for example sounds seven pontillistic events, representing the seven fallen astronauts. Like-wise, the primary melodic material of the main theme centers on seven pitches. Fleeting motives from the elegiac passages are derived from the lives of each astronaut (a bit of Chopin prelude for Judith Resnik, an accomplished classical pianist; a fragment of the Navy Hymn for Commander Michael Smith…). The binary representation for the seventy-three seconds of the mission (01001001) dictates a rhythmic motive heard throughout.

“Threnody for Challenger” was commissioned by the Kempsville Junior High School Band on December 21, 1991, at the Mid-West International Band and Orchestra Clinic.

Kirkpatrick Fanfare
Commissioned by Central Missouri State University for the dedication of the James C. Kirkpatrick Library in March 1999, this work has a definite Irish flavor, including a strain of Danny Boy. The “Fanfare” features driving rhythms and exciting brass figures, making this dramatic, making this dramatic work sure to please both performers and audience alike.

Ye Banks and Braes o’ Bonnie Doon
Grainger considered the folk singers the “kings and queens of song…lords in their own domain—at once performers and creators.” He once described concert singers as slaves to tyrannical composers. It was for the wind band, a “vehicle of
